Introduction
This course invites students to create Language Learning materials for all levels of learners inside or outside classroom use and/or for self-access learning purposes. The course will be conducted as a semi project based approach. In the process of designing the learning material, related issues such as instruction &amp; technology and educational game theories, language learning approaches, learning strategies and styles, curriculum design will be incorporated and analyzed so that the final designs will be well embedded in both theories and practicality. At the end one or more design/prototype has to be completed depending on numbers of students who take the course. A pilot test on the design should be undertaken and its results to be presented openly for public evaluation.
