Introduction
English words leaping across the gulf of 3000 years, they light the world for us today. The acquisition of English vocabulary has been felt to be a crucial component of learning English as a foreign language. This course is designed to demonstrate the links that exist between lexicon, culture, and society in order to motivate students to learn English vocabulary more effectively. Its main aims are: 1) to draw on recent vocabulary teaching research for a promising new direction in vocabulary teaching and learning, 2) to recognize the study of English word-formation which involves 3 aspects of morphology, semantics, and grammar, 3) to stimulate a thorough re-thinking of the goals and methods of vocabulary teaching and its roles in ESL/EFL.
