Introduction
The course will enable students to move more easily through the English speaking sections of the internet. Some technical computer knowledge and multimedia usage are part of the course plan, as well as the training of general English abilities. The popular environment of the net will inspire students to challenge themselves. The course is meant to be an “ inspiration ” for future self-study. One section of the course will be covered by a group project. This project will move through various stages of research, assembly and presentation during the semester. It will culminate in a final display of the project and an English class activity at the end of the semester. Apart from teaching English communication and reading on the net, the project will teach students self-study skills, team work, online research methods, presentation modes and, hopefully, c r e a t e i v i t y.
