102-2 Preliminary Syllabus, Da-Yeh Univ

Information

Title		Serial No. / ID	1903 / IMB1004
Dept.		School System / Class	1 1
Lecturer		Full or Part-time
Required / Credit	Required / 3	Graduate Class	No
Time / Place	(　)BCD / A406	Language	Chinese

Introduction

(1). To understand the concepts of programming

(2). To learn the usage of Visual Studio development environment

(3). Learning C language syntax used to design programs

Outline

From "programming concepts" instructions, let students know what a successful software systems, must be concerted efforts by several different roles, programming is just one stage. Through the "early programming experience," students can see how to utilize the Visual Studio development tools for writing and debugging of the program. Again, a series of "program de   ion and application of grammar exercises" to help students understand and are familiar with how to use programming language to write a practical system of procedures.

Prerequisite

(1). Must complete the "Introduction to Computer Science" course

(2). To be interested in the use of computer software

(3).Does not exclude writing programs