Introduction

This course aims to help students develop genuine communication skills through various drama activities and mini-performance. Through the practices of dialogues, role-play, simulations, improvisations, and vocal/physical training, students will learn not only to understand the prosodic features of English such as pronunciation, rhythm, and intonation, but also to develop solid communication skills in reading, writing, and speaking. Class activities will include discussion, debates, role plays, simulations, games, prepared talks, dramatized play readings.
